SENATE PREPARES FOR ADJOURNMENT MAY 26

USUAL TWELFTH HOUR JAM OF MUCH BUSINESS

TAX REDUCTION, BOULDER DAM BILLS, CONFERENCE REPORTS

McNARY-HAUGEN FARM RELIEF AND OTHER MEASURES FACE SOLONS

Washington, May 16.—(UP)—Legislative action on the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill was completed today. The senate adopted the conference report on the measure and sent it to the White House for President Coolidge's signature or veto.

By KENNETH CRAWFORD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 16.—The usual twelfth-hour jam of unfinished business piled up in the senate today as leaders prepared for adjournment on May 26.

Tax reduction and Boulder Dam bills, conference reports on the Jones shipping bill and the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill and scores of less important measures claimed attention.

All important amendments to the tax reduction bill have been disposed of except one by Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, providing for repeal of the federal estate tax.

Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, requested that the amendment be withdrawn to save time but Bingham refused and it probably will be debated at length. Borah predicted the discussion would consume two or three days.

The tax bill was temporarily laid aside late yesterday for consideration of the conference report on the Jones bill. This had not been expected to require more than an hour but Senator Blaine, republican, Wisconsin, objected to hasty action.

He refused to enter into a unanimous consent agreement to vote at two o'clock this afternoon, protesting that several senators were with him in opposing the bill agreed to by house and senate conferees.

Reminded that nothing can be done on the McNary-Haugen report or the Boulder Dam bill until the Jones report is disposed of, Blaine said President Coolidge would refuse to sign the farm bill anyway and expressed the hope "that Senator Johnson is not so credulous as to expect a vote on the Boulder Dam bill at this session."

"I do not propose that congress shall adjourn on a date set by leaders opposed to essential legislation," Johnson replied. "We are entitled to a vote, favorable or adverse, on Boulder Dam and I plan to have one if we have to sit here day and night to get it."

Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, announced early this week that he would seek adoption of the conference report on the farm bill before Saturday. This is expected to pass without prolonged debate.

The senate will meet at 11 A. M. one hour in advance of the usual time, today and start holding regular night sessions next week.

He reached the front room window just in time to see Mrs. Starr's body fall to the roof of a low extension of the apartment building.

Mrs. Hornady was in possession of the club house. The padlocked office of the president was opened yesterday and when Mrs. Goodman arrived to take over the desk, she found Mrs. Hornady seated.

KANSAS CITY TO CLEAN UP FOR CONVENTION

REPUBLICAN COMPANY IS COMING NEXT MONTH, STAY SEVERAL DAYS

CITY STARTS CAMPAIGN AGAINST BOOTLEGGING, HI-JACKING, GAMBLING, ETC.

By JOHN A. BOWLER, JR. Kansas City, Mo., May 16.—With company coming next month, Kansas City officials are making frantic efforts figuratively to clean up the bad little boys of the underworld here before the republican national convention.

Within recent weeks criminals have become so active that the local press seriously is comparing Kansas City with St. Louis and Chicago as a crime center.

Federal officials, state, county and city police have started unprecedented campaigns against bootlegging, hi-jacking, gambling, vice, murders, sluggings, bombings and hold-ups.

With prominent politicians arriving daily from every part of the country for the June convention, civic leaders feel the underworld has seized a most inopportune time to increase their activity. They are anxious to present the town in its most respectable light, but fear their efforts will be demoralized if crime news monopolizes the headlines of newspapers and the breakfast-table conversations of visiting delegates.

Recent antics of the underworld have caused Kansas City no end of embarrassment during the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Bombings, kidnappings and corruption at the polls was the scene presented to the churchmen.

The motives behind the activities of the ever-increasing number of federal prohibition agents here are different, but no less determined. They have orders to "dry up" Kansas City before the national political meeting.

The situation assumed deepest political significance with a report published here that prominent leaders had called upon Governor Sam Baker to take radical action to end the crime wave before the convention.

Thorough reorganization of the police department was said to have been a part of the program these men suggested. In some quarters this idea was dismissed as mere "political agitation."

UNIVERSITY STUDENT KILLED BY BANDIT AT FILLING STATION

St. Paul, May 16.—(UP)—Robert Cumming, 20, University of Minnesota student, was shot and killed late Tuesday by one of two youthful bandits who held up a filling station where Cumming was employed.

No witnesses to the killing could be found but residents of the neighborhood cast suspicion on two boys about 16 years old. They had not been found today.

Several residents of the district reported seeing the two youths leave the filling station lot soon after the fatal shot was fired. Cumming left the building to get help and died before reaching the street.

Cumming was a sophomore at the university and was employed as night attendant at the oil station. He was the son of Ford J. Cumming, Minneapolis.

NORTHERN CHINESE ARMY ENTRENCHED ON 80-MILE FRONT

FALL OF PEKING TO SOUTHERN NATIONALIST ARMY IS EXPECTED WITHIN MONTH

GEN. CHANG TSO-LIN OF NORTHERNERS HAS 150,000 MEN IN THE FIELD

By MILES W. VAUGHN (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Tokio, May 16.—The northern Chinese army today was reported firmly entrenched on an eighty-mile front below Peking but the fall of that city to the advancing southern nationalist army was expected within a month.

General Chang Tso Lin, commanding the northerners, has about 150,000 men in the field and declared he would defend his position to the utmost ability of his army.

It was considered unlikely that resistance to the southerners would be great inasmuch as the northern army is believed to be demoralized. Further retreat probably will put them to rout, it was believed here.

The northerners are greatly outnumbered by the nationalists, military statistics here showed.

On one of the advancing fronts, General Feng Yu Hsiang is reported to have 200,000 troops while General Chiang Kai Shek, commanding another wing of the nationalists, is said to have 100,000 troops. It was General Chiang's army that recently engaged in hostilities in Shantung province with the Japanese forces.

The northern front is said to be established between Pao-tin and the Tientsin-Pukow railroad.

The advance of the nationalists is along a route that might include Tientsin, although there have been reports here that the southerners had not thought of taking that city.

The Japanese government is watching closely the situation in Tientsin because there are a number of Japanese nationals in that city. There are a number of Japanese troops already there but the government is understood to be considering sending reinforcements into Tientsin as an emergency protective measure.

TO PUT BAPTISTS ON RECORD FOR 'DRY' PRESIDENT

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 16.—(UP)—Southern Baptists opened their annual church convention here today with an admonition from the executive committee to spur them on, and an apparent intention of leaders to put the 4,000 delegates on record as favoring a "dry" for president.

The executive committee, in its recommendations to the convention, noted a nation-wide tendency "to lag in duty to the church."

WILL DEFER COLLECTION OF HER INSURANCE

Helena, Mont., May 16.—(UP)—There's trouble ahead in the home of Robert and Florida Debro, negroes.

Florida buried her husband, Robert, ten days ago, mourned him as a dutiful and loving wife should, paid his funeral expenses, and set out to collect his $10,000 life insurance policy.

Then Robert telephoned from a distant town and announced he was on his way home. "What! Ain't you dead?" Florida's trembling voice asked.

"Course I ain't dead, honey; what you mean?" Robert answered.

"I've been away, but I'm on my way home now."

Two weeks ago, deputy sheriff Fred Smith arrested a negro at Melwood, near here, and the negro slashed the deputy's throat in an attempt to escape. Smith shot him and the body was identified by Florida as that of her husband.

REVEAL PLANS OF AIR TRANSPORT SYSTEM OF U. S.

TRANSPORTATION TO INCLUDE MOST OF PRINCIPAL CITIES

CUT TRAVEL TIME, COAST TO COAST, TO FORTY-EIGHT HOURS

New York, May 16.—(UP)—Detailed plans of the Transcontinental Air Transport Inc., revealed today that the new air and rail system will be extended to include most of the principal cities of the United States. Further plans of the new company, which will cut travel time between the Atlantic and Pacific to 48 hours, were announced by C. M. Keys, president of the new company and head of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation.

William B. Mayo, chief engineer of the Ford Motor Co., will be a member of the board of directors of the corporation, Keys said. Mayo is in charge of design and building of the Ford tri-motored transport planes. No official of the Ford company would confirm the report that the Detroit plant is to supply planes for the Transcontinental system, but it is known that the plant was at work on 20 large planes for an unnamed customer.

Another director will be Col. Paul Henderson, former assistant postmaster general, president of the National Air Transport, which operates the eastern division of the Chicago-Dallas transcontinental air mail.

Co-operation with railroads in order to realize full possibilities of the new system is necessary, sponsors said. The Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroad will play an important role in the new company.

The New York to Los Angeles route which will be the first put in operation—probably within the next six or seven months—was chosen because there would be no night flying involved and the country over which day flights would be made is favorable, according to Keys.

Modern tri-motored planes carrying 14 passengers each and with a scheduled flying speed of 90 miles an hour, will be used, Keys said. The planes have a maximum speed of 120 miles an hour and the scheduled speed will allow for any delays. The planes will be equipped with every known safety device.

Rates will be a reasonable advance over railroad rates, he said, and light luggage will be carried on the planes.

"Among the other routes now in contemplation is a branch from Chicago to the Twin Cities and other western cities will be added eventually by airplane or railroad connections," Keys added.

"St. Louis and Kansas City will be on the Transcontinental route. Principal landing fields will be maintained near Columbus, Ohio, and in New Mexico. The company plans to

BROTHER IN CONFESSION TO OFFICER

JOE AND VICTOR ZAPJAC BURIED BODY OF 4-YEAR-OLD BROTHER

CLAIM LATTER DROWNED IN A CREEK NEAR LITTLE FALLS

Little Falls, Minn., May 16.—(UP)—Joe Zapjac, 13, today confessed to Capt. of State Militia Gray that he and his brother, Victor, 11, buried the body of their younger brother, George, 4, in a meadow after he had drowned in a creek Thursday.

The child had been missing since that time when authorities were told that George had been sent back home for a supply of angle worms for his older brothers while fishing in a creek near their home.

According to the story told Capt. Gray by the youth, they became frightened when George toppled into the creek and upon discovering he was dead, they hurriedly took the body and covered it with earth.

Three other persons with Gray verified the alleged confession.

Later the boys denied there was any truth in their statements, but authorities are confident they know more of the fate of the boy than had been admitted, and are conducting an intensive search for the body.

Vadsø, Norway, May 16.—(UP)—The polar dirigible Italia arrived at Cape Germania, Franz Josef Land, at 5:10 A. M. today, according to a wireless message received here from General Umberto Nobile, commander of the expedition.

The explorer said the Italia was forced to fly low owing to a heavy fog that held over the northern country.

Kings Bay, May 16.—Gen. Umberto Nobile radioed at 9 A. M. today that his polar dirigible Italia was continuing along the same course that she pursued on her last flight.

Previously he had reported arriving over Cape Germania, Franz Josef Land at 5:10 A. M.

"We flew through a thick fog bank yesterday," Nobile's message added. "The visibility is variable now. We are flying against a headwind and the ship is rolling. However Tromsø (the meteorological station) predicts an improvement in the weather."

"The weight of an ice crust forming on the hull and metal parts of the ship might become serious, but the Italia is safer in the air than in her hangar at Spitzbergen."

Co-operation with railroads in order to realize full possibilities of the new system is necessary, sponsors said. The Pennsylvania and Santa Fe railroad will play an important role in the new company.

The New York to Los Angeles route which will be the first put in operation—probably within the next six or seven months—was chosen because there would be no night flying involved and the country over which day flights would be made is favorable, according to Keys.

Modern tri-motored planes carrying 14 passengers each and with a scheduled flying speed of 90 miles an hour, will be used, Keys said. The planes have a maximum speed of 120 miles an hour and the scheduled speed will allow for any delays. The planes will be equipped with every known safety device.

Rates will be a reasonable advance over railroad rates, he said, and light luggage will be carried on the planes.

"Among the other routes now in contemplation is a branch from Chicago to the Twin Cities and other western cities will be added eventually by airplane or railroad connections," Keys added.

"St. Louis and Kansas City will be on the Transcontinental route. Principal landing fields will be maintained near Columbus, Ohio, and in New Mexico. The company plans to

BROTHER IN CONFESSION TO OFFICER

CLAIM LATTER DROWNED IN A CREEK NEAR LITTLE FALLS

Little Falls, Minn., May 16.—(UP)—Joe Zapjac, 13, today confessed to Capt. of State Militia Gray that he and his brother, Victor, 11, buried the body of their younger brother, George, 4, in a meadow after he had drowned in a creek Thursday.

The child had been missing since that time when authorities were told that George had been sent back home for a supply of angle worms for his older brothers while fishing in a creek near their home.

According to the story told Capt. Gray by the youth, they became frightened when George toppled into the creek and upon discovering he was dead, they hurriedly took the body and covered it with earth.

Three other persons with Gray verified the alleged confession.

Later the boys denied there was any truth in their statements, but authorities are confident they know more of the fate of the boy than had been admitted, and are conducting an intensive search for the body.

POLAR DIRIGIBLE ITALIA ARRIVES AT CAPE GERMANIA

Vadsø, Norway, May 16.—(UP)—The polar dirigible Italia arrived at Cape Germania, Franz Josef Land, at 5:10 A. M. today, according to a wireless message received here from General Umberto Nobile, commander of the expedition.

The explorer said the Italia was forced to fly low owing to a heavy fog that held over the northern country.

Kings Bay, May 16.—Gen. Umberto Nobile radioed at 9 A. M. today that his polar dirigible Italia was continuing along the same course that she pursued on her last flight. Previously he had reported arriving over Cape Germania, Franz Josef Land at 5:10 A. M.

"We flew through a thick fog bank yesterday," Nobile's message added. "The visibility is variable now. We are flying against a headwind and the ship is rolling. However Tromsø (the meteorological station) predicts an improvement in the weather."

"The weight of an ice crust forming on the hull and metal parts of the ship might become serious, but the Italia is safer in the air than in her hangar at Spitzbergen."

The last sentence referred to a recent storm, which damaged both the hangar and the airship.

McGARRY BRANDED A DOUBLE-CROSSER

State Accuses Defendant of Coming to Authorities to Save
His Own Skin

JURY TAKES CASE

Jury Hears Final Arguments of State and Defense; Deliberating at Press Time

P. W. McGarry whose fate today rests with a Crow Wing county jury who at press time were deliberating as to his innocence or guilt of the charge of first degree robbery of the First National bank of Ironton, was severely excoriated by Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland as he presented his final argument to the jury, this morning.

"McGarry's past record gives the lie to the conclusion that he wanted to see the guilty parties in the bank robbery apprehended. He was no more qualified to assist in the apprehension of the criminals than a dog on the street. Like a rat to save his own skin and because Proctor hadn't turned over $5,000 to him he came down here and started his double crossing stunt. That was McGarry's motive and his only motive. If McGarry's only connection with the case is that of introducing Stewart to Proctor then it is your duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty but I believe that the relationship between Proctor and McGarry and facts revealed in the trial were such that McGarry was guilty according to the law," said Mr. Wieland to the jury.

M. E. Ryan, in presenting the defense's final argument, made a stirring appeal to the jury as to the man's innocence.

The case went to the jury at 10:55 a. m. At press time the jury was still out.

Police technology in "getting their men" was explained by Charles D. Brown, head of the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers Association as he testified for the defense yesterday afternoon in the trial of P. W. McGarry, charged with first degree robbery of the First National bank of Ironton November 9, 1927.

Mr. Brown was called by the defense to testify as to the part McGarry, himself, Sheriff Claus Theorin and Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg took in the apprehension of Almon H. Proctor, former cashier of the bank who now serves a sentence at Stillwater for his connection with the holdup.

The chief investigator of the Bankers Association stated that he had been in the employ of the Association for the past 23 years and that he had been engaged practically all his life in the apprehension of criminals. On questioning as to his age, he hesitated and laughingly asked if he must tell. He is 59 years old.

Mr. Brown stated that it is his duty to protect 1396 banks in the state members of the Association from bank holdups and depredations. He said that he was notified of the holdup of the bank the same afternoon and arrived here with four of his men the next morning.

He immediately got in touch with the Sheriff's department and the County Attorney's department here and worked with them on the case all the time.

The day following the robbery Mr. Brown and his men went to Ironton where they questioned the bank employees, and proprietors of poolrooms, hotels, cafes, etc., as to whether any suspicious looking characters had been in the town on that date or just previous. He stated that Proctor at that time was perfectly willing to cooperate with him and that there was no suspicion directed to him.

McGarry was questioned by Mr. Brown as to whether he saw any men from St. Paul there. He stated that McGarry told him that he had seen Stewart.

"Although I did not know it at the time, McGarry told Charles Oberg that he had something important to tell soon. That was the day following the robbery. I remained on the case the first time for nine days and returned to St. Paul for a few days. It was then that I received a call from Sheriff Theorin that I should come up. When I did McGarry was in the sheriff's house and it was there that he told us of his suspicions of Proctor. McGarry also stated to us that Stewart had been to Proctor and demanded $2,500. I suggested that McGarry go to Proctor and state that he wanted some money to take to Stewart. He did this and secured the $500 which he brought to the sheriff's office with him and gave to the authorities," said Mr. Brown. "McGarry then worked with us on the case, reporting to the sheriff's office frequently. He secured a letter from 'Specks' Peterson, (known to the police as a gambler) which 'Specks' addressed to Proctor requesting some money so that he could leave town."

Proctor was arrested on December 11 and put through severe questioning by the authorities. He was told that Stewart had been arrested and had told everything and that the $500 which they had found on Stewart was secured by him from Proctor. It was at that time that Proctor admitted his part of the robbery.

At no time in the questioning did Proctor implicate McGarry in the robbery. Mr. Brown stated. Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg and Sheriff Claus Theorin further testified as to the part McGarry took in the apprehension of Proctor.

The defense brought its case to a close at 5:10 p. m. yesterday, the state reserving the right to call Proctor this morning.

On the stand yesterday afternoon McGarry told of his earlier days when he played professional baseball for 12 years at Winnipeg, St. Paul and Eau Claire, or his work in a bowling alley in St. Paul, and later of his work in operating a poolroom at Ironton. On questioning he told of operating games on a commission at Ironton.

"The latter part of January, 1927, Proctor called me on the telephone and said he wanted to see me," testified McGarry, "when I did see him he said 'Mac, I've been thinking about something for some time. You know men in St. Paul and could possibly get someone to pull a bank robbery.' He came to me often regarding the robbing of the bank and I told him I didn't want anything to do with it. Proctor was under the influence of liquor every time he talked about the proposed robbery. I was in Deerwood at the time of the robbery and when I heard of it I naturally thought of Proctor and his plans. I told Charlie Oberg the next day that I had some pretty good information to tell Claus Theorin. I went to the court house a few days later and was unable to see the sheriff. Later I got in touch with him and Sheriff Theorin told me to wait and tell my story to Mr. Brown and himself. When Mr. Brown came I told him my story and they asked me to work with them."

On cross examination by Mr. Wieland, McGarry said that he had been drinking considerably himself previous to the robbery, and admitted he had served sentence on liquor charges. He told of a deal a few years ago when Proctor, he, and two others had been "stuck" for $1800 on a shipment of water instead of liquor.

McGARRY BRANDED A DOUBLE-CROSSER

State Accuses Defendant of Coming to Authorities to Save His Own Skin

JURY TAKES CASE

Jury Hears Final Arguments of State and Defense; Deliberating at Press Time

P. W. McGarry whose fate today rests with a Crow Wing county jury who at press time were deliberating as to his innocence or guilt of the charge of first degree robbery of the First National bank of Ironton, was severely excoriated by Assistant Attorney General Walter F. Wieland as he presented his final argument to the jury, this morning.

"McGarry's past record gives the lie to the conclusion that he wanted to see the guilty parties in the bank robbery apprehended. He was no more qualified to assist in the apprehension of the criminals than a dog on the street. Like a rat to save his own skin and because Proctor hadn't turned over $5,000 to him he came down here and started his double crossing stunt. That was McGarry's motive and his only motive. If McGarry's only connection with the case is that of introducing Stewart to Proctor then it is your duty to bring in a verdict of not guilty but I believe that the relationship between Proctor and McGarry and facts revealed in the trial were such that McGarry was guilty according to the law," said Mr. Wieland to the jury.

M. E. Ryan, in presenting the defense's final argument, made a stirring appeal to the jury as to the man's innocence.

The case went to the jury at 10:55 a. m. At press time the jury was still out.

Police testimony in "getting their men" was explained by Charles D. Brown, head of the protective department of the Minnesota Bankers Association as he testified for the defense yesterday afternoon in the trial of P. W. McGarry, charged with first degree robbery of the First National bank of Ironton November 9, 1927.

Mr. Brown was called by the defense to testify as to the part McGarry, himself, Sheriff Claus Theorin and Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg took in the apprehension of Almon H. Proctor, former cashier of the bank who now serves a sentence at Stillwater for his connection with the holdup.

The chief investigator of the Bankers Association stated that he had been in the employ of the Association for the past 23 years and that he had been engaged practically all his life in the apprehension of criminals. On questioning as to his age, he hesitated, and laughingly asked if he must tell. He is 59 years old.

Mr. Brown stated that it is his duty to protect 1396 banks in the state members of the Association from bank holdups and depredations. He said that he was notified of the holdup of the bank the same afternoon and arrived here with four of his men the next morning.

He immediately got in touch with the Sheriff's department and the County Attorney's department here and worked with them on the case all the time.

The day following the robbery Mr. Brown and his men went to Ironton where they questioned the bank employees and proprietors of poolrooms, hotels, cafes, etc., as to whether any suspicious looking characters had been in the town on that date or just previous. He stated that Proctor at that time was perfectly willing to cooperate with him and that there was no suspicion directed to him.

McGarry was questioned by Mr. Brown as to whether he saw any men from St. Paul there. He stated that McGarry told him that he had seen Stewart.

"Although I did not know it at the time, McGarry told Charles Oberg that he had something important to tell soon. That was the day following the robbery. I remained on the case the first time for nine days and returned to St. Paul for a few days. It was then that I received a call from Sheriff Theorin that I should come up. When I did McGarry was in the sheriff's house and it was there that he told us of his suspicions of Proctor. McGarry also stated to us that Stewart had been to Proctor and demanded $2,500. I suggested that McGarry go to Proctor and state that he wanted some money to take to Stewart. He did this and secured the $500 which he brought to the sheriff's office with him and gave to the authorities," said Mr. Brown. "McGarry then worked with us on the case, reporting to the sheriff's office frequently. He secured a letter from 'Specks' Peterson, (known to the police as a gambler) which 'Specks' addressed to Proctor requesting some money so that he could leave town."

Proctor was arrested on December 11 and put through severe questioning by the authorities. He was told that Stewart had been arrested and had told everything and that the $500 which they had found on Stewart was secured by him from Proctor. It was at that time that Proctor admitted his part of the robbery.

At no time in the questioning did Proctor implicate McGarry in the robbery, Mr. Brown stated.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Oberg and Sheriff Claus Theorin further testified as to the part McGarry took in the apprehension of Proctor.

The defense brought its case to a close at 5:10 p. m. yesterday, the state reserving the right to call Proctor this morning.

On the stand yesterday afternoon, McGarry told of his earlier days when he played professional baseball for 12 years at Winnipeg, St. Paul and Eau Claire, of his work in a bowling alley in St. Paul, and later of his work in operating a poolroom at Ironton. On questioning he told of operating games on a commission at Ironton.

"The latter part of January, 1927 Proctor called me on the telephone and said he wanted to see me," testified McGarry, "when I did see him he said 'Mac, I've been thinking about something for some time. You know men in St. Paul and could possibly get someone to pull a bank robbery.' He came to me often regarding the robbing of the bank and I told him I didn't want anything to do with it. Proctor was under the influence of liquor every time he talked about the proposed robbery. I was in Deerwood at the time of the robbery and when I heard of it I naturally thought of Proctor and his plans. I told Charlie Oberg the next day that I had some pretty good information to tell Claus Theorin. I went to the court house a few days later and was unable to see the sheriff. Later I got in touch with him and Sheriff Theorin told me to wait and tell my story to Mr. Brown and himself. When Mr. Brown came I told him my story and they asked me to work with them."

On cross examination by Mr. Wieland, McGarry said that he had been drinking considerably himself previous to the robbery, and admitted he had served sentence on liquor charges. He told of a deal a few years ago when Proctor, he, and two others had been "stuck" for $1800 on a shipment of water instead of liquor.

THE DECLINE IN MINING

THE Duluth News Tribune in a Sunday editorial calls attention to the fact that iron range communities are not as prosperous as they once were, referring to the Mesaba and Vermillion ranges. Conditions, in a lesser degree, are reflected on our Cuyuna range. On the Cuyuna the demand for manganiferous ores has done much to preserve the prosperity of the baby range of Minnesota, but the over-taxing of the mining industry is felt here as much as in other ranges of the state.

The Duluth paper states further that more than 25 communities in northeastern Minnesota are entirely dependent for their existence upon iron mining. Were it not for iron ore these cities and villages could not exist. If there had been no mines, they would not have been built.

But iron was discovered, mines were opened up and put into operation producing ore, and communities sprang up, grew and prospered. Approximately 100,000 persons depend for their livelihood upon the mining industry and its various branches.

More than 40 per cent of the revenue tonnage of Minnesota railroads is iron ore. In point of tonnage, Duluth is the second port in the United States, and it is because of iron ore shipments that this is so.

It would appear to be an industry worth fostering and protecting, worth encouraging and supporting, in order that full advantage may be taken of the state's iron ore resources. Yet the mining industry has been taxed to the limit, the taxes being based not upon justice or equity, or even upon good business judgment, but upon what the traffic would bear.

This heavy tax burden, computed upon the ability of the mining industry to pay, has resulted in a curtailment of operations. No new developments are being made. Employment in the mines and related industries has fallen off. Today only about 65 per cent of the number of men employed in the mines in 1920 are able to find work there.

Mines have closed down and in many cases there has been a tendency to shift operations from underground to larger open pit production that is less expensive. Range communities suffer from these things.

At the next session of the state legislature steps should be taken to relieve the iron mining industry in Minnesota from at least a part of the heavy tax burden under which it has been struggling.

This would tend to encourage the development of the state's iron ore resources, the opening and operation of more mines, the employment of more and more men, and greater prosperity all around. Payroll dollars are more substantial than tax dollars, and when mines close, both payrolls and taxes stop.

Over-taxing the mining industry has had a bad effect in Minnesota. The mining communities are not as prosperous as they were. This condition can and should be remedied. This state still has enormous iron ore deposits, especially in low-grade ores. These can be developed if conditions warrant it.

HOME TOWN DEVELOPMENT

It used to be frequently said in smaller towns, that it is the business of a good citizen to mind his own business, keep out of debt and avoid breaking laws. It was commonly thought that if he did that, it was about all that could be expected of him, and he was conforming to the ideals of good citizenship.

But a community's development cannot be promoted in these times on any such limited basis. The fact that so many small town people still have this spirit, and expect to get along without doing anything to boost community movements, is one of the principal reasons why some towns do not get ahead faster. Some must take hold and carry on the work of churches and fraternal societies. Some of the men with a special head for business need to work in some organization for the commercial and other needed development of the community. Some need to work in clubs for educational purposes, and for more interesting social activities. There is something that each one should do and we must all take hold to do something in these public lines, if we expect that a town is going to keep up with the game.

People should not act as if they were making a great sacrifice if they devote a little of their time to such purposes. We should love our home town so much, we should be so ambitious to see it go ahead, we should be so conscious of the gains that people who have initiative or ability or industry, should be willing to give some time each week to helping forward such causes.—St. Cloud Daily Times.

6,000 HOTEL ROOMS FOR ROTARY

A BLOCK of 6,000 rooms in Minneapolis hotels has been reserved for delegates and visitors to the International Rotary convention to be conducted in Minneapolis June 18 to 22, it has been announced by Howard H. Feighner, convention manager. The reservation of so many rooms a month in advance breaks all records in the history of Rotary conventions, Mr. Feighner said.

The task of assigning the various national delegates to hotels has been begun, Mr. Feighner said. The British delegation has been assigned to the Nicolet and Andrews hotels, the Italians to the Nicolet, and visitors from Indianapolis will occupy the entire Radisson Inn.

Besides the famous Minneapolis hanging gardens of 15 years ago, revived for the conventions this summer by MacMartin, the city will be decorated by huge stands containing flags of the 44 nations which will be represented at the convention. It is estimated that the meeting will bring at least 15,000 visitors to the city, 14,000 of whom will have to be quartered in hotels.

In literature distributed at the last meeting of Brainerd Rotary, the Arrowhead organization was in evidence with an invitation to International Rotary to spend the aftermath of the great convention in their section.

Now Brainerd should not be modest and should also set forth the just claims of this territory of lakes and rivers and seek to entertain groups of the delegates here.

CHURCH INFLUENCE

THE church influence of any town is its best asset. Take the churches out of the community and it would be a haunt of jack-rabbits.

People do not move to a town because of its nice polished dance floors, its wonderful jazz orchestra, its quota of moonshine, its immoralities or other debasing influences but what the church has to offer in real activities.

Statements of the School Situation for the Voters Consideration

Keep this in mind:

1. That practically everyone is agreed that additional school room has been urgently needed for a number of years.

2. That on March 30, 1928, the Washington School, the largest in the City, was destroyed by fire.

3. That because of this fire it is necessary to provide not only for a new high school but also for additional school room for the many children who are now and have for several years past been located in basement rooms.

4. That basement school rooms are far from being a satisfactory part of our school system, and are only temporarily tolerated by the State Department.

5. That children in the lower grades should have proper school facilities close to their homes.

6. That children in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, regardless of their place of residence, should have equal school facilities located fairly central and without the necessity of their having to cross the railroad tracks in order to attend school.

7. That Manual Training and Domestic Science are well established departments of the public school system which should be accessible alike to all students.

8. That the seventh, eighth and ninth grades north of the tracks will have the same opportunity to take sewing, cooking, manual training, physical training, and other Freshman subjects as those attending the Washington Building.

9. That the proposed buildings on the Washington site and the Fill site will take care of the situation outlined in a very acceptable manner, and go a long way toward giving us an up-to-the-minute school system.

10. That the building to be erected on the Washington site will house the Senior High and the Junior High School pupils that live south of the N. P. Tracks. The building to be erected on the Fill site will house the seventh, eighth and ninth grades north of the tracks.

11. That most Minnesota cities of the size of Brainerd have already adopted the Junior High School plan, and within a few years most places of 3,000 population, or over, will probably do likewise. Does Brainerd want to remain in a class by itself?

12. Our neighbors, Little Falls, Bemidji, Ironton, Crosby, Staples, Fergus Falls, Long Prairie, and many more towns have seen the advantages of the Junior High and have organized their schools under the State approved plan. It is the most modern approved plan of up-to-date educators of caring for the children of the adolescent age (the seventh, eighth and ninth grades). Why should we hesitate?

13. The State High School Inspector, Mr. E. M. Phillips, has visited Brainerd, in an official capacity, for many years, and has given his unqualified endorsement of the project of one Junior High School on the North side of the city, and one combined Junior-Senior High School on the South side of the city as a practical solution of the school building problem of Brainerd.

14. That Junior High Schools draw special state aid.

15. That there are approximately 700 pupils of Junior High School classification in this city at the present time. This means about 350 Junior High School pupils to be provided for on each side of the City. The number of teachers and classrooms would, therefore, be practically the same whether in a single large building project or in two separate units as the State establishes the reasonable standard as to teachers and class rooms to provide for a given number of pupils. The number of grade teachers employed in a Junior High School for the seventh and eighth grade pupils should not be materially different from the number now employed in these grades under our present department arrangement, and the number of high school teachers assigned to Junior High School work, or to provide for the Freshman pupils, should be no greater than under the present four-year high school plan.

16. That the cost to the taxpayers has been considered of such primary importance that in all probability no increase in taxes will be required. In any event, the increase could only be slight and not at all burdensome.

17. That the reason for the preceding statement being true comes from the fact that the Board of Education began several years ago to levy in excess of their needs which accounts for the large cash surplus now on hand and which levy in all probability will take care of the increased expense incident to the proposed new buildings.

18. That during the past seven years the bonded indebtedness of the Brainerd School District has been reduced from $100,000.00 to the present indebtedness of $15,000.00, which bonds are not due and not obtainable until maturity.

19. That during the time the bonded indebtedness was being reduced a cash surplus was accumulated which amounts to more than $250,000.00.

20. That the accumulated surplus, together with insurance money from the buildings destroyed by fire, brings the cash resources of the Brainerd School District very close to $375,000.00.

21. That since the necessity for the proposed new building is so self evident and since the Brainerd School District is in such excellent condition financially; and also (bear this in mind), since provision was made in our levy several years ago to take care of the increased expense, then it is not only your privilege but frankly your duty as citizens to vote "Yes" on both building proposals and also "Yes" on both bond proposals.

22. With no extra expense to the tax-payers, let's vote to have two modern, fire-proof school buildings that will take care of our school needs.

23. We need both buildings.

24. The children are entitled to these advantages.

Vote YES on all four questions.

THE DECLINE IN MINING

THE Duluth News Tribune in a Sunday editorial calls attention to the fact that iron range communities are not as prosperous as they once were, referring to the Mesaba and Vermillion ranges. Conditions, in a lesser degree, are reflected on our Cuyuna range. On the Cuyuna the demand for manganiferous ores has done much to preserve the prosperity of the baby range of Minnesota, but the over-taxing of the mining industry is felt here as much as in other ranges of the state.

The Duluth paper states further that more than 25 communities in northeastern Minnesota are entirely dependent for their existence upon iron mining. Were it not for iron ore these cities and villages could not exist. If there had been no mines, they would not have been built.

But iron was discovered, mines were opened up and put into operation producing ore, and communities sprang up, grew and prospered. Approximately 100,000 persons depend for their livelihood upon the mining industry and its various branches.

More than 40 per cent of the revenue tonnage of Minnesota railroads is iron ore. In point of tonnage, Duluth is the second port in the United States, and it is because of iron ore shipments that this is so.

It would appear to be an industry worth fostering and protecting, worth encouraging and supporting, in order that full advantage may be taken of the state's iron ore resources. Yet the mining industry has been taxed to the limit, the taxes being based not upon justice or equity, or even upon good business judgment, but upon what the traffic would bear.

This heavy tax burden, computed upon the ability of the mining industry to pay, has resulted in a curtailment of operations. No new developments are being made. Employment in the mines and related industries has fallen off. Today only about 65 per cent of the number of men employed in the mines in 1920 are able to find work there.

Mines have closed down and in many cases there has been a tendency to shift operations from underground to larger open pit production that is less expensive. Range communities suffer from these things.

At the next session of the state legislature steps should be taken to relieve the iron mining industry in Minnesota from at least a part of the heavy tax burden under which it has been struggling.

This would tend to encourage the development of the state's iron ore resources, the opening and operation of more mines, the employment of more and more men, and greater prosperity all around. Payroll dollars are more substantial than tax dollars, and when mines close, both payrolls and taxes stop.

Over-taxing the mining industry has had a bad effect in Minnesota. The mining communities are not as prosperous as they were. This condition can and should be remedied. This state still has enormous iron ore deposits, especially in low-grade ores. These can be developed if conditions warrant it.

HOME TOWN DEVELOPMENT

It used to be frequently said in smaller towns, that it is the business of a good citizen to mind his own business, keep out of debt and avoid breaking laws. It was commonly thought that if he did that, it was about all that could be expected of him, and he was conforming to the ideals of good citizenship.

But a community's development cannot be promoted in these times on any such limited basis. The fact that so many small town people still have this spirit, and expect to get along without doing anything to boost community movements, is one of the principal reasons why some towns do not get ahead faster. Some must take hold and carry on the work of churches and fraternal societies. Some of the men with a special head for business need to work in some organization for the commercial and other needed development of the community. Some need to work in clubs for educational purposes, and for more interesting social activities. There is something that each one should do and we must all take hold to do something in these public lines, if we expect that a town is going to keep up with the game.

People should not act as if they were making a great sacrifice if they devote a little of their time to such purposes. We should love our home town so much, we should be so ambitious to see it go ahead, we should be so conscious of the gains that people who have initiative or ability or industry, should be willing to give some time each week to helping forward such causes.—St. Cloud Daily Times.

6,000 HOTEL ROOMS FOR ROTARY

A BLOCK of 6,000 rooms in Minneapolis hotels has been reserved for delegates and visitors to the International Rotary convention to be conducted in Minneapolis June 18 to 22, it has been announced by Howard H. Feighner, convention manager. The reservation of so many rooms a month in advance breaks all records in the history of Rotary conventions, Mr. Feighner said.

The task of assigning the various national delegates to hotels has been begun, Mr. Feighner said. The British delegation has been assigned to the Nicollet and Andrews hotels, the Italians to the Nicollet, and visitors from Indianapolis will occupy the entire Radisson Inn.

Besides the famous Minneapolis hanging gardens of 15 years ago, revived for the conventions this summer by MacMartin, the city will be decorated by huge stands containing flags of the 44 nations which will be represented at the convention. It is estimated that the meeting will bring at least 15,000 visitors to the city, 14,000 of whom will have to be quartered in hotels.

In literature distributed at the last meeting of Brainerd Rotary, the Arrowhead organization was in evidence with an invitation to International Rotary to spend the aftermath of the great convention in their section.

Now Brainerd should not be modest and should also set forth the just claims of this territory of lakes and rivers and seek to entertain groups of the delegates here.

CHURCH INFLUENCE

THE church influence of any town is its best asset. Take the churches out of the community and it would be a haunt of jack-rabbits.

People do not move to a town because of its nice polished dance floors, its wonderful jazz orchestra, its quota of moonshine, its immoralities or other debasing influences but what the church has to offer in real activities.

Statements of the School Situation for the Voters Consideration

Keep this in mind:

1. That practically everyone is agreed that additional school room has been urgently needed for a number of years.

2. That on March 30, 1928, the Washington School, the largest in the City, was destroyed by fire.

3. That because of this fire it is necessary to provide not only for a new high school but also for additional school room for the many children who are now and have for several years past been located in basement rooms.

4. That basement school rooms are far from being a satisfactory part of our school system, and are only temporarily tolerated by the State Department.

5. That children in the lower grades should have proper school facilities close to their homes.

6. That children in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, regardless of their place of residence, should have equal school facilities located fairly central and without the necessity of their having to cross the railroad tracks in order to attend school.

7. That Manual Training and Domestic Science are well established departments of the public school system which should be accessible alike to all students.

8. That the seventh, eighth and ninth grades north of the tracks will have the same opportunity to take sewing, cooking, manual training, physical training, and other Freshman subjects as those attending the Washington Building.

9. That the proposed buildings on the Washington site and the Fill site will take care of the situation outlined in a very acceptable manner, and go a long way toward giving us an up-to-the-minute school system.

10. That the building to be erected on the Washington site will house the Senior High and the Junior High School pupils that live south of the N. P. Tracks. The building to be erected on the Fill site will house the seventh, eighth and ninth grades north of the tracks.

11. That most Minnesota cities of the size of Brainerd have already adopted the Junior High School plan, and within a few years most places of 3,000 population, or over, will probably do likewise. Does Brainerd want to remain in a class by itself?

12. Our neighbors, Little Falls, Bemidji, Ironton, Crosby, Staples, Fergus Falls, Long Prairie, and many more towns have seen the advantages of the Junior High and have organized their schools under the State approved plan. It is the most modern approved plan of up-to-date educators of caring for the children of the adolescent age (the seventh, eighth and ninth grades). Why should we hesitate?

13. The State High School Inspector, Mr. E. M. Phillips, has visited Brainerd, in an official capacity, for many years, and has given his unqualified endorsement of the project of one Junior High School on the North side of the city, and one combined Junior-Senior High School on the South side of the city as a practical solution of the school building problem of Brainerd.

14. That Junior High Schools draw special state aid.

15. That there are approximately 700 pupils of Junior High School classification in this city at the present time. This means about 350 Junior High School pupils to be provided for on each side of the City. The number of teachers and classrooms would, therefore, be practically the same whether in a single large building project or in two separate units as the State establishes the reasonable standard as to teachers and class rooms to provide for a given number of pupils. The number of grade teachers employed in a Junior High School for the seventh and eighth grade pupils should not be materially different from the number now employed in these grades under our present department arrangement, and the number of high school teachers assigned to Junior High School work, or to provide for the Freshman pupils, should be no greater than under the present four-year high school plan.

16. That the cost to the taxpayers has been considered of such primary importance that in all probability no increase in taxes will be required. In any event, the increase could only be slight and not at all burdensome.

17. That the reason for the preceding statement being true comes from the fact that the Board of Education began several years ago to levy in excess of their needs which accounts for the large cash surplus now on hand and which levy in all probability will take care of the increased expense incident to the proposed new buildings.

18. That during the past seven years the bonded indebtedness of the Brainerd School District has been reduced from $100,000.00 to the present indebtedness of $15,000.00, which bonds are not due and not obtainable until maturity.

19. That during the time the bonded indebtedness was being reduced a cash surplus was accumulated which amounts to more than $250,000.00.

20. That the accumulated surplus, together with insurance money from the buildings destroyed by fire, brings the cash resources of the Brainerd School District very close to $375,000.00.

21. That since the necessity for the proposed new building is so self evident and since the Brainerd School District is in such excellent condition financially; and also (bear this in mind), since provision was made in our levy several years ago to take care of the increased expense, then it is not only your privilege but frankly your duty as citizens to vote "Yes" on both building proposals and also "Yes" on both bond proposals.

22. With no extra expense to the tax-payers, let's vote to have two modern, fire-proof school buildings that will take care of our school needs.

23. We need both buildings.

24. The children are entitled to these advantages.

Vote YES on all four questions.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT RACE IS A TOPSY-TURVY ONE

3 LEADERS HAVE SHORT BREATHING SPELL

SIX TEAMS ARE STRUGGLING HARD TO GET IN FRONT POSITION

FEW EARLY PENNANT RACES HAVE PROVIDED MORE THRILLS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

New York, May 16.—The topsy-turvy National League pennant race partially halts today to give three of the four leaders a momentary breathing spell.

With six teams struggling to get out in front, few early season pennant races have provided more thrills than this year's National League race which finds one team and then the other ahead.

The New York Giants have been tossed all the way from first to fourth place in three days. The Chicago Cubs have climbed from seventh place to a tie for the lead with the Cincinnati Reds in two weeks. After dropping all the way from first to sixth place, the Brooklyn Robins have started another ascent and are now in fifth place.

Only two games are scheduled today, the Robins meeting the Pirates at Pittsburgh and the Braves playing the Cardinals at St. Louis. The brief rest comes as a welcome relief to the players on the Reds, Cubs and Giants who have been keyed up to a high-pitch during the last several days of the torrid drive.

For the Giants, it is a god-send. Without their manager and badly disorganized, the Giants will have a chance to gather themselves together before opening their fourth crucial series in the west at St. Louis Thursday.

Riding the crest of a ten-game winning streak, the Cubs had rather get back into action than remain idle, but one day of rest after the hectic series with the Giants undoubtedly will keep McCarthy's charges from cracking wide open under the tension. The Braves, playing listless ball, open a four-game series with the Cubs Thursday.

The St. Louis Cardinals have a chance to go into a triple tie with the Reds and Cubs for first place by beating the Braves today.

Coming back strong after their temporary slump, the Brooklyn Robins have won three in a row. Following the suspension and $200 fine tacked on Jess Petty for breaking training rules, the entire Brooklyn club has settled down to business and is playing winning baseball.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, getting neither the hitting nor pitching, are in the throes of a three-game losing streak.

With the first intersectional invasion three-fourths completed, the western clubs have completely dominated the east-west clashes.

Only the Pirates have failed to win a majority of their games, while the Cubs Cards and Reds have won every series except two, the Giants-Reds series and the Robins-Cards series, both of which ended in an even break.

LITTLE FALLS WINS FROM DONALDSON'S SCOBY ALL-STARS

Before a record crowd of 1,600 fans, who braved the cold weather, Little Falls' All-Salaried Team won in a game of baseball from John Donaldson's Scoby All-Stars at Little Falls Sunday.

The game was fast and snappy, being played in one hour and forty minutes and was full of good baseball and snappy action throughout.

Batteries for Scoby were Donaldson, Warwa and Lupe and for Little Falls McDonald and Van.

McDonald struck out eight batters and made a very fine impression in his opening game to the fans of this section. The catching of Van was of the highest caliber and this pair will no doubt furnish the fans with some high caliber battery work this season.

Little Falls plays Johnnie Baker Post All-Salaried Colored Team next Sunday at Little Falls and another record crowd is anticipated.

SPORTSMATTER

FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

There hasn't been a real battle for the lightweight championship of the world since Benny Leonard last defended that title against Lew Tendler, the slashing Philadelphia southpaw, five years ago.

Tomorrow night, weather and the inclination of the fighters permitting, we may see one of those old-time thrillers at Yankee Stadium, when Sammy Mandell comes forth from retirement, or whatever he calls it, to do battle with Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin from Ireland and the far west.

Since Leonard last licked Tendler and then hung up his gloves to please his mama, there have been a number of fights advertised as for the lightweight championship, but all have been of the synthetic, elimination or "Chicago" variety.

Leonard was the last real lightweight king. His speed, boxing ability, ring generalship and hitting made him an ideal fighter, one of the greatest who ever bore the 135-pound title. Some claim that Leonard was greater even than Joe Gans, but this is doubtful. Certainly the suave, sleek New York Jew was a worthy title-holder and willing to lick any man who thought he wasn't.

Leonard retired because his mother didn't like him boxing around with those rough boys, and then look what happened. There was no logical successor, but two outstanding candidates, Sammy Mandell and Sidney Terris.

An elimination tournament, fore-runner of the heavyweight elimination contests with which Tex Rickard annoyed the fight fans during the past two winters, was arranged by that cauliflower impressario. Terris and Mandell haughtily refused to enter, and all the other second rate lightweights scurried to take part. There was a dark skinned little chap from South America who could lick all the others put together, but he broke his ankle and eventually, after a series of mediocre bouts, the lightweight title was conferred upon Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo.

Jimmy was a game little battler, but by no means a logical successor to Benny Leonard or any other real lightweight champion. He didn't last long. Rocky Kansas, who had been punched about by the great and near great of the 135-pound division for many years, fought Goodrich for the title and won it.

Everyone was glad to see Kansas make some money, for he had been a sturdy trial horse and given the customers many a good battle for their money. But Rocky had taken so many punches that he was just a trifle "goofy," as Jack Dempsey put it, and in a moment of carelessness Kansas permitted himself to be lured to Chicago to defend his new title against Sammy Mandell.

Everyone knew what that meant. The referee raised Mandell's hand at the end of ten rounds of indifferent fighting, and Sammy tucked the title up his sleeve and "took it on the lam" for the bush league towns where the club fighters grow round heels. Once or twice, Mandell put on what was billed as a championship battle, but not once has he been faced by a really dangerous opponent.

Jimmy McLarnin brings to the coming battle all the color required by a fight crowd. With the little Irish lad in there tomorrow night, the fans will feel satisfied that they are indeed witnessing a championship affair.

The fight may not be as thrilling from the point of view of blood and knockdowns, as some anticipate, but it is bound to be colorful.

TEN EVENT SPORT TO DETERMINE THE BEST SCHOOL ATHLETE

DIVIDED INTO TWO DAY EVENTS; TO BE HELD AT GREGORY PARK

ARRANGEMENTS MADE ALSO FOR INTER-CLASS TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Arrangements are being made at the present to run off the decathlon, "a ten-event sport," at Gregory park for Brainerd high school track athletes.

The purpose of this event is to determine the best all around track athlete in the Brainerd high school.

Medals will be given to the winner and it is the plan of Coach Warren E. Kasch to establish this as an annual event in Brainerd high school athletics. The rules and the details of the event will be given below. It will take two days to run off this event, making it possible to run off five events each day. The first day the following events will be run off in the order named: 75 yard high hurdles (four hurdles 15 yards apart) broad jump, javelin, pole vault, 220 yard dash.

The second day events will be run off in the order named: 75 yard dash, shot put, high jump, discus, half mile.

An explanation is given on how this system works. First, 75 yard dash as an example, all running events to work on similar principle. If the 75-yard dash is run in 7 3-5 seconds, it scores 1000 points for the individual. Next, the score declines 250 points for second, example—a run in 8 3-5 seconds scores 750 points. For time slower than 12 seconds no score is given. Another example is the running high jump, all events in regard to height being run on a similar principle. A jump of 6 feet one inch is scored 1000 points. A decline of 40 points per inch is made, for example 6 feet equals 960 points. To score at all the individual must jump at least four feet. The third example is the shot put which illustrates all events for distance. A throw of 47 feet scores 1000 points. There is a decline of 4 points per inch. No score is made for a throw 25 feet or less. The best athlete is determined by averaging the points from all the events.

Interclass Meet

The date for the interclass meet will be set so that it will not interfere with other school events. The track events will be as follows: 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, quarter mile, and half mile. The only hurdle race will be the 120 yard low hurdle. The field events will be the broad jump, high jump, pole vault, shot put, discus and javelin. There will be two relay events, the half mile in which each man will run 220 yards, and the medley relay in which the first man will run 75 yards, the second 150 yards, the third 300 yards, and the fourth 440 yards.

Each class will be allowed two men for each event. Individuals may enter at least three track events and three field events. Any individual may enter the relay even though he has taken part in three field and track events.

Square of Sod Pleases

Chicks and Broody Hens

A square of sod, dirt up, in the brooder will give chicks a good time picking at the bits of soil and gravel adhering to the roots, and scratching like old hens to get it. A square of sod makes also the best base for a nest for broody hens. Take a box not less than 12 by 16 inches. Fit some newspapers in the bottom, and on top of that place a piece of sod dirt up, and mold the nest to fit the body of the hen and prevent the eggs rolling into corners. If the box is set on a cement floor, put slats under to allow the free passage of air. Three days before setting the hens, treat them with sodium fluoride for lice.

Agricultural Squibs

A muddy barnyard is a fine breeding place for flies. Good drainage is the solution.

Cutworms can be controlled with poisoned bran mash, scattered in the late afternoon or early evening at the rate of 15 pounds to the acre.

On rainy days repair that piece of machinery you need later on. It will save time when the machine is in the field. A stitch in time may save the wheat.

Cutworms cut off many plants in the spring garden. They may be poisoned with bait placed near the plants.

NATIONAL LEAGUE PENNANT RACE IS A TOPSY-TURVY ONE

3 LEADERS HAVE SHORT BREATHING SPELL

SIX TEAMS ARE STRUGGLING HARD TO GET IN FRONT POSITION

FEW EARLY PENNANT RACES HAVE PROVIDED MORE THRILLS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

New York, May 16.—The topsy-turvy National League pennant race partially halts today to give three of the four leaders a momentary breathing spell.

With six teams struggling to get out in front, few early season pennant races have provided more thrills than this year's National League race which finds one team and then the other ahead.

The New York Giants have been tossed all the way from first to fourth place in three days. The Chicago Cubs have climbed from seventh place to a tie for the lead with the Cincinnati Reds in two weeks. After dropping all the way from first to sixth place, the Brooklyn Robins have started another ascent and are now in fifth place.

Only two games are scheduled today, the Robins meeting the Pirates at Pittsburgh and the Braves playing the Cardinals at St. Louis. The brief rest comes as a welcome relief to the players on the Reds, Cubs and Giants who have been keyed up to a high-pitch during the last several days of the torrid drive.

For the Giants, it is a god-send. Without their manager and badly disorganized, the Giants will have a chance to gather themselves together before opening their fourth crucial series in the west at St. Louis Thursday.

Riding the crest of a ten-game winning streak, the Cubs had rather get back into action than remain idle, but one day of rest after the hectic series with the Giants undoubtedly will keep McCarthy's charges from cracking wide open under the tension. The Braves, playing listless ball, open a four-game series with the Cubs Thursday.

The St. Louis Cardinals have a chance to go into a triple tie with the Reds and Cubs for first place by beating the Braves today.

Coming back strong after their temporary slump, the Brooklyn Robins have won three in a row. Following the suspension and $200 fine tacked on Jess Petty for breaking training rules, the entire Brooklyn club has settled down to business and is playing winning baseball.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, getting neither the hitting nor pitching, are in the throes of a three-game losing streak.

With the first intersectional invasion three-fourths completed, the western clubs have completely dominated the east-west clashes.

Only the Pirates have failed to win a majority of their games, while the Cubs Cards and Reds have won every series except two, the Giants-Reds series and the Robins-Cards series, both of which ended in an even break.

LITTLE FALLS WINS FROM DONALDSON'S SCOBY ALL-STARS

Before a record crowd of 1,600 fans, who braved the cold weather, Little Falls' All-Salaried Team won in a game of baseball from John Donaldson's Scoby All-Stars at Little Falls Sunday.

The game was fast and snappy, being played in one hour and forty minutes and was full of good baseball and snappy action throughout.

Batteries for Scoby were Donaldson, Warwa and Lupe and for Little Falls McDonald and Van.

McDonald struck out eight batters and made a very fine impression in his opening game to the fans of this section. The catching of Van was of the highest caliber and this pair will no doubt furnish the fans with some high caliber battery work this season.

Little Falls plays Johnnie Baker Post All-Salaried Colored Team next Sunday at Little Falls and another record crowd is anticipated.

SPORTSMATTER

FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

There hasn't been a real battle for the lightweight championship of the world since Benny Leonard last defended that title against Lew Tendler, the slashing Philadelphia southpaw, five years ago.

Tomorrow night, weather and the inclination of the fighters permitting, we may see one of those old-time thrillers at Yankee Stadium, when Sammy Mandell comes forth from retirement, or whatever he calls it, to do battle with Baby Face Jimmy McLarnin from Ireland and the far west.

Since Leonard last licked Tendler and then hung up his gloves to please his mama, there have been a number of fights advertised as for the lightweight championship, but all have been of the synthetic, elimination or "Chicago" variety.

Leonard was the last real lightweight king. His speed, boxing ability, ring generalship and hitting made him an ideal fighter, one of the greatest who ever bore the 135-pound title. Some claim that Leonard was greater even than Joe Gans, but this is doubtful. Certainly the suave, sleek New York Jew was a worthy title-holder and willing to lick any man who thought he wasn't.

Leonard retired because his mother didn't like him boxing around with those rough boys, and then look what happened. There was no logical successor, but two outstanding candidates, Sammy Mandell and Sidney Terris.

An elimination tournament, fore-runner of the heavyweight elimination contests with which Tex Rickard annoyed the fight fans during the past two winters, was arranged by that cauliflower impressario. Terris and Mandell haughtily refused to enter, and all the other second rate lightweights scurried to take part. There was a dark skinned little chap from South America who could lick all the others put together, but he broke his ankle and eventually, after a series of mediocre bouts, the lightweight title was conferred upon Jimmy Goodrich of Buffalo.

Jimmy was a game little battler, but by no means a logical successor to Benny Leonard or any other real lightweight champion. He didn't last long. Rocky Kansas, who had been punched about by the great and near great of the 135-pound division for many years, fought Goodrich for the title and won it.

Everyone was glad to see Kansas make some money, for he had been a sturdy trial horse and given the customers many a good battle for their money. But Rocky had taken so many punches that he was just a trifle "goofy," as Jack Dempsey put it, and in a moment of carelessness Kansas permitted himself to be lured to Chicago to defend his new title against Sammy Mandell.

Everyone knew what that meant. The referee raised Mandell's hand at the end of ten rounds of indifferent fighting, and Sammy tucked the title up his sleeve and "took it on the lam" for the bush league towns where the club fighters grow round heels. Once or twice, Mandell put on what was billed as a championship battle, but not once has he been faced by a really dangerous opponent.

Jimmy McLarnin brings to the coming battle all the color required by a fight crowd. With the little Irish lad in there tomorrow night, the fans will feel satisfied that they are indeed witnessing a championship affair.

The fight may not be as thrilling from the point of view of blood and knockdowns, as some anticipate, but it is bound to be colorful.

1800 LIONS TO JOIN CONVENTION

Ninth Annual 5th District Meeting at Breezy Point Lodge

International Vice President Earle W. Hodges, N. Y., Heads List of Speakers

Over 1,800 members of Lions clubs in Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota and the Canadian provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan have been summoned to gather at Breezy Point Lodge, on Big Pelican Lake, 18 miles north of Brainerd, for their ninth annual Fifth District convention on June 11 and 12, 1928. Large numbers are expected to arrive on Sunday, June 10, and special entertainment for the early arrivals is planned.

International Vice President Earle W. Hodges of New York City, vice president of the Henry L. Doherty Co., will head the list of speakers of national and international prominence and an elaborate program of entertainment and sports is being provided by committees in charge.

This convention is international in character and officially opens famous Breezy Point for the season, after which many other large conventions will follow in close order and tax the spacious capacity of this beautiful summer resort until well in to the middle of the season.

The Brainerd lake district, with its beautiful lakes and sumptuous summer resorts, is fast becoming the mecca for summer conventions and the fame of northern Minnesota as a summer playground is being spread far and wide by the ever increasing number of convention visitors each year.

DAGGETT BROOK

We are sad to report the death of little "Mike" (as he was lovingly called) the little four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Holsapple. At this writing we have not learned the cause of his death which occurred Sunday evening at 6 o'clock. He is survived by his parents and the following brothers and sisters, Leonard, Marian, Louise, Jimmie, and "Pat." The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the bereaved family.

Joe Knerr was a Brainerd visitor on Sunday.

Ed. Rahl visited friends in Eagle Bend last Sunday. He was accompanied by Dilmar and Lester Hilderbrand.

The Mother's Day program given by the Sunday school last Sunday was well attended and was much enjoyed by all. We all enjoyed hearing the fine sermon by Rev. M. L. Eversz of the Methodist church of Brainerd. Here's hoping he comes out again soon.

Bathing Beauties at Breezy Point

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

May 16, 1903

While W. Rogers and wife were working in their garden this noon he dug up a sample of gold, one piece of which we positively know is worth five dollars.

Miss Nellie Merritt has been named as an instructress at the summer school to be held at Mora commencing July 6. Miss Nettie C. Sayles has likewise been honored and she will go to Aitkin for the summer school, which also commences July 6. This is a compliment to these popular Brainerd teachers.

Tomorrow, May 17, is Norway's Independence day. Contrary to previous plans the Norwegians of the city did not make any preparations to celebrate the day in this city, but some twenty or more members of the I. S. W. A. left today and others will leave tonight for Little Falls where they will assist in a big celebration there.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Q. Parker returned yesterday from their wedding trip and are domiciled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Spalding on Fourth street North.

Dr. Reid, who recently arrived in the city, has taken offices over the Northern Pacific bank.

Mrs. James Smith and children came up from St. Paul this afternoon and they will visit with Mrs. Smith's mother, Mrs. Joseph Schwartz, for a few days.

STAGE TROUPE TO PARK THEATRE MONDAY, MAY 21

OBRECHT SISTERS AND JOHNNIE SULLIVAN PLAYERS TO BE HERE SEVEN DAYS

Obrecht Sisters and Johnnie Sullivan Players will make their appearance in Brainerd Monday evening, when they will open for a seven-day engagement at the Park Theatre.

This company has long been popular with theatre-goers in nearby districts and in addition to Sara and Jule Obrecht, Mr. Sullivan, Teddy Armond, George Bowling and George Edwards, there are some new members in the company's cast this year. They are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coons, Dave Rodrick, Keith Gingles, Keane Waters and Carl Johnson.

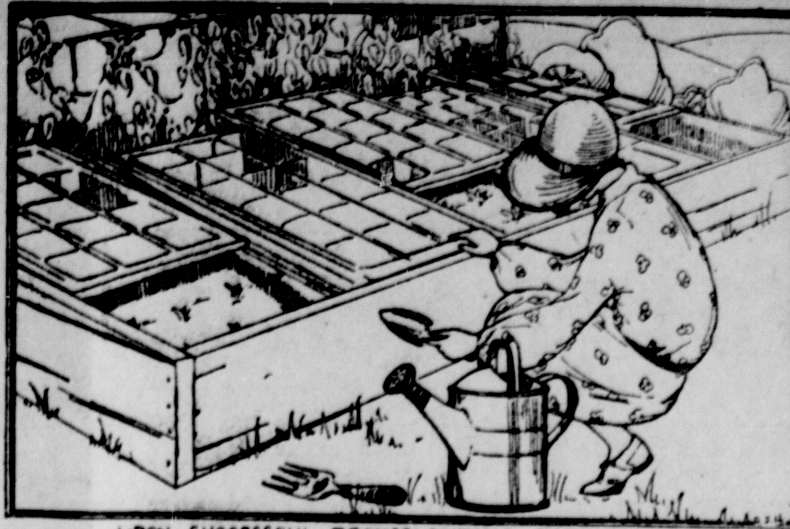

The company will present Barry Connors' comedy success, "The Patsy," on the opening night, and this will be followed by "Pigs," "What Price Glory," "The Mad Honeymoon," "Laff That Off" and other Broadway successes.

Adolphe Menjou Here in "A Night of Mystery"

Adolphe Menjou, world's most popular "other man," abandons his far-famed dress suit in his latest Paramount starring vehicle, "A Night of Mystery," now on the screen at the Lyceum theatre.

Instead, the star wears a scarlet uniform of the French-African Chasseurs, and in one of the sequences on the Sahara desert dons the tropical headgear and burnous of the native.

But, despite his change of wardrobe, it is the same Menjou, the same able actor who, in his pictures, breaks the hearts of beautiful women.

UPON SUCCESSFUL TRANSPLANTING DEPENDS THE SUCCESS OF THE GARDEN

SPRING MOVING OF PLANTS

The annual spring moving of plants from quarters in the hotbed, cold frame or seed boxes or from seedbeds in the open is the most important phase of the garden after digging. The success of the garden will depend upon how successful a job of transplanting has been done. Cabbages, celery, tomatoes, peppers, eggplants, onions for big Spanish exhibition types, cauliflowers, and a few other vegetables that need an early start for an early crop must be transferred.

If possible, select a cloudy day for transplanting and one in which there is a threat of showers. The weather forecast now offers a good down about the roots and settle the guide in this respect. Get as much of the root system of the baby plant as possible and as much dirt as can be made to cling to it in moving. Often it will not be possible to take any soil with the root, but watering it in thoroughly will make up in part for this disturbance.

Set the seedlings fairly deep, making a hole ample to permit the spreading out of the roots in a natural manner and no wadding them up. Firm the soil around them gently until the plant is in place and then apply more pressure to firm it into position and water it thoroughly so that the moisture will soak soil in close contact with them. Establishing contact between soil and roots is the main factor of transplanting successfully.

Make arrangements to shade freshly transplanted plants if the work has to be done on a sunny day. A light board supported on flower pots or boxes over the row of transplanted seedlings is one of the most convenient and efficient means. Strawberry boxes or flower pots or pieces of newspaper or building paper held in place by a handful of earth will serve. Shade for two or three days until the plants resume a fresh and sturdy look. If well firm in and watered some of them will not wilt, but the majority of them are likely to droop a bit for a day or two.

A shower is the best stimulant for transplanted plants and if they can be put in time to get the benefit of a rain there will not be much need to worry about them.

Plants should have the leaf growth snipped back about half when transplanted.

Dix Comedy Is Bundle of Fun Centered Around Troublesome Bag of Bonds

Ideas on how not to get rid of money are sometimes as valuable as those on how to accumulate money. Richard Dix, in his latest farce comedy, "Easy Come, Easy Go," which will show at the Lyceum theatre Thursday and Friday, manages to hold on to a great deal of money even when he doesn't wish to.

NEW performance values came into existence when the first Chrysler was created four years ago. The industry since has gone over en masse to the effort to pattern after them. But the remarkable thing is that Chrysler "72" is just as much alone today as when it was the one and only exponent of its type. Alone in a theoretical sense only? Alone in performance which singles it out and sets it apart in competition of the street and road and hill as much as its brilliant beauty sets it apart in the eye of the onlooker. NOW YOU CAN BUY A CONSTANT VISCOSITY MOTOR OIL—ISO-VIS!

Troubles aren't what they used to be in motoring! Thanks to Iso-Vis. In the old days there was one lubrication trouble that was so common that people thought it had to be. They took it for granted and made the best of it. Of course they said—there is no way to overcome dilution in the crank case. A motor oil that is light enough to give easy starting will thin out and fail to lubricate the engine under working conditions.

A motor oil that is heavy enough to give correct lubrication under working conditions will fail to give easy starting.

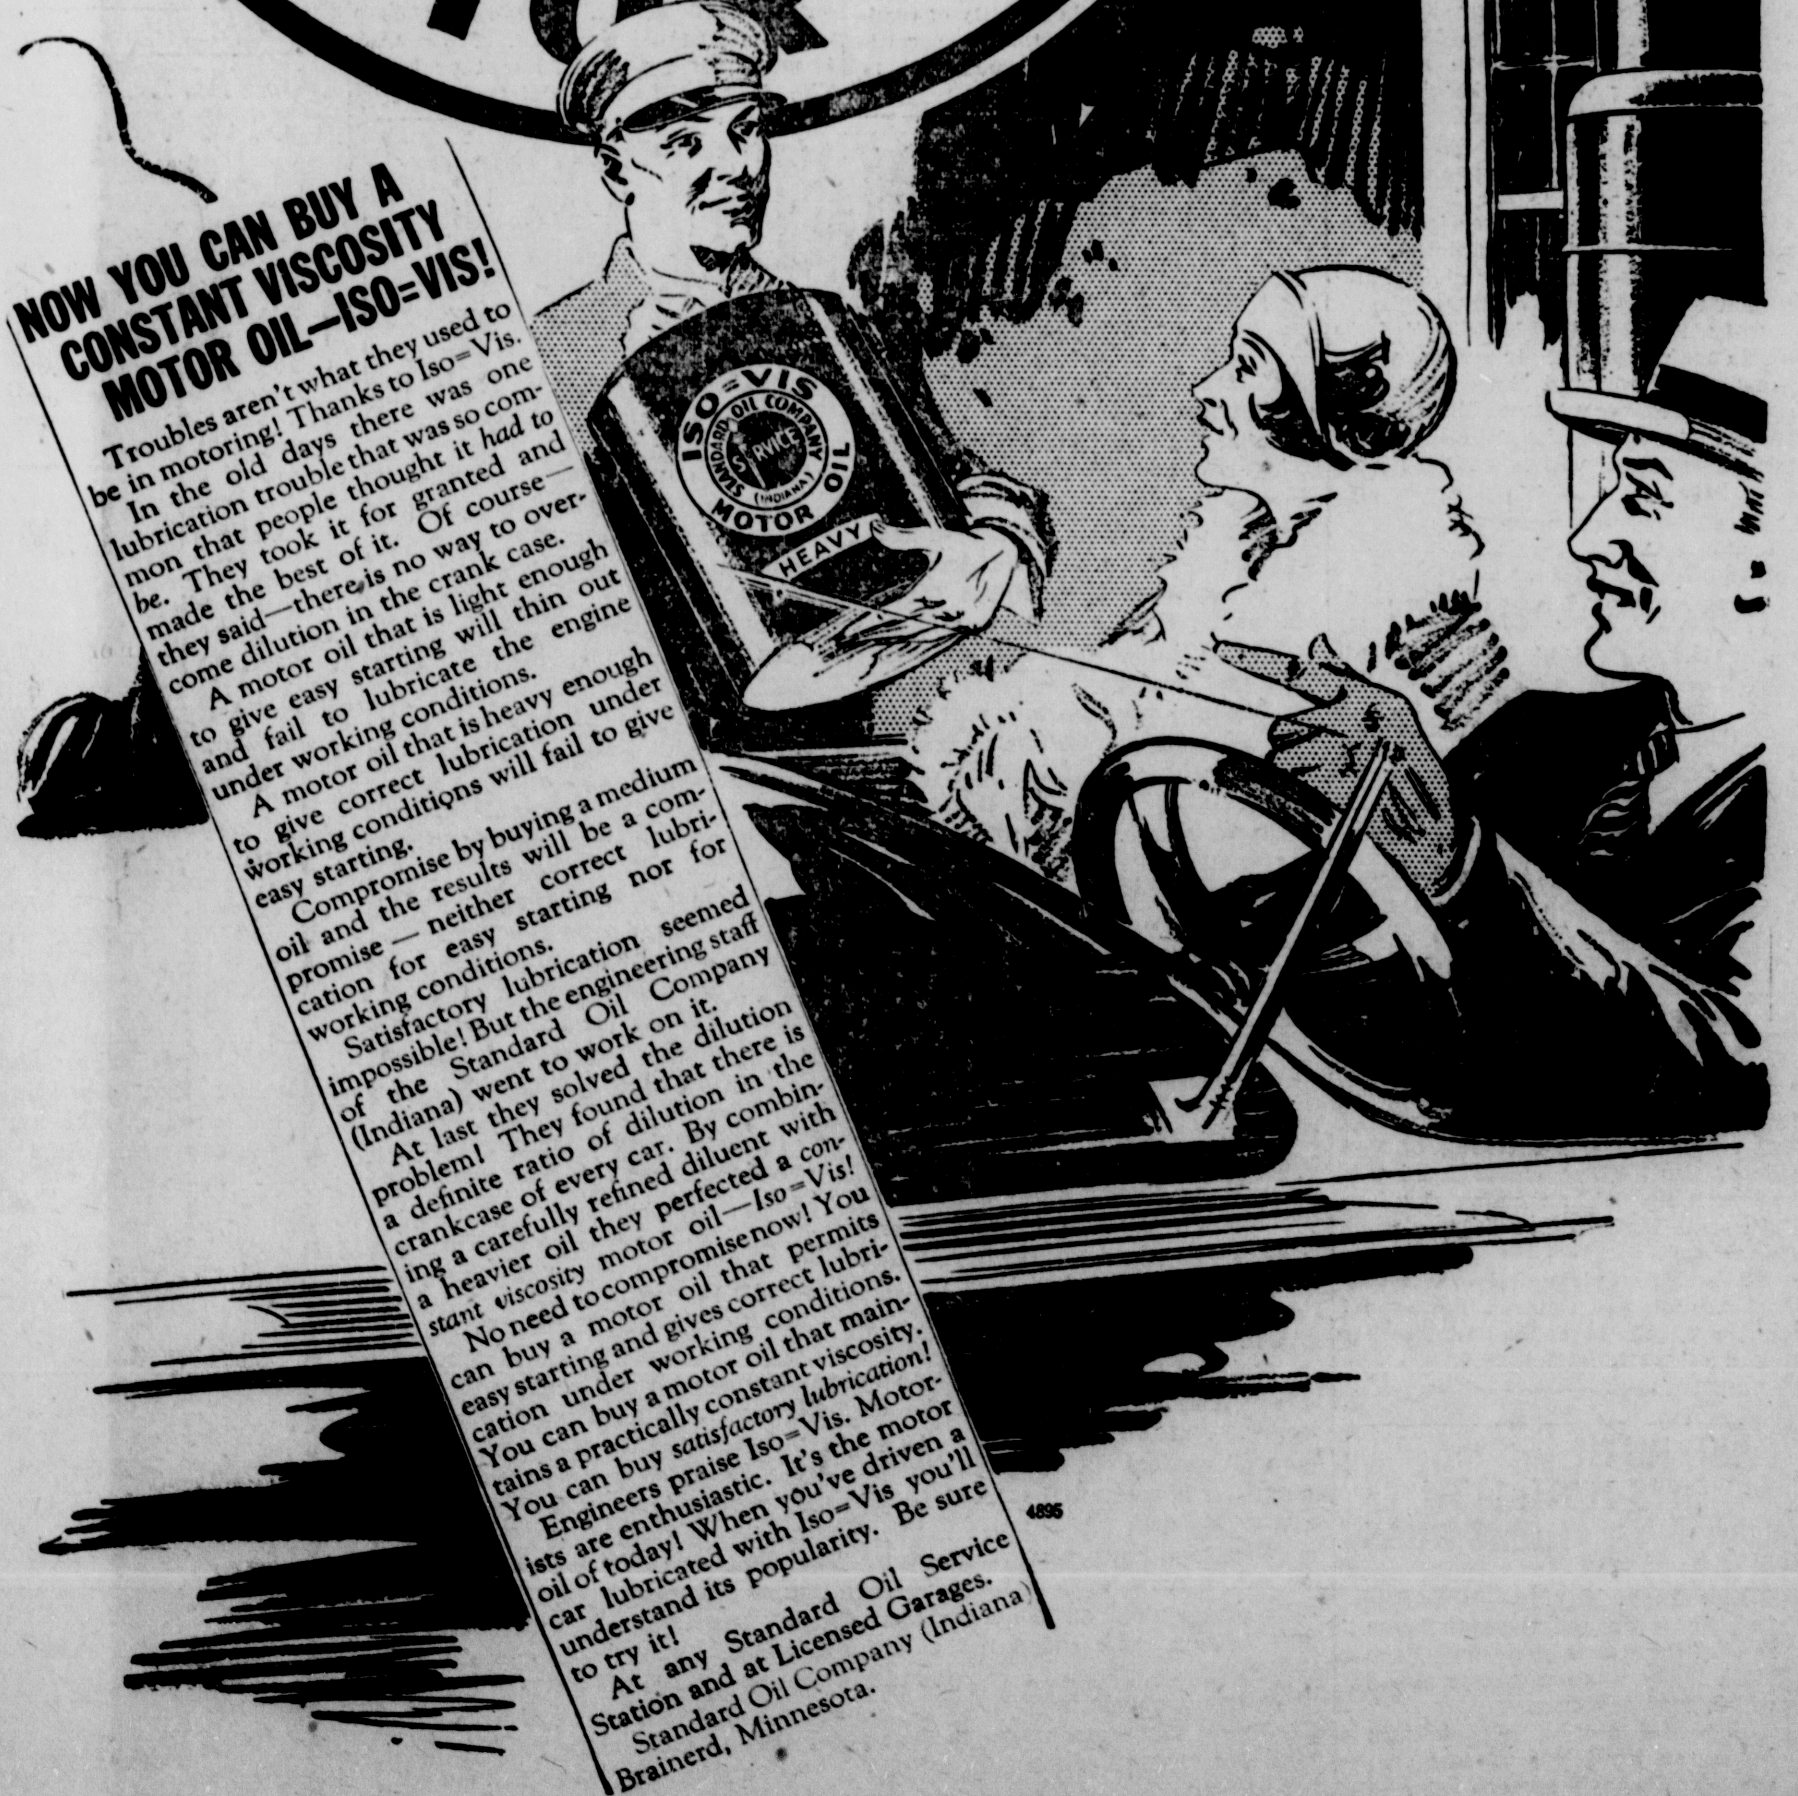

Compromise by buying a medium oil and the results will be a compromise—neither correct lubrication for easy starting nor for working conditions.

Satisfactory lubrication seemed impossible! But the engineering staff of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) went to work on it.

At last they solved the dilution problem! They found that there is a definite ratio of dilution in the crankcase of every car. By combining a carefully refined diluent with a heavier oil they perfected a constant viscosity motor oil—Iso-Vis!

No need to compromise now! You can buy a motor oil that permits easy starting and gives correct lubrication under working conditions. You can buy a motor oil that maintains a practically constant viscosity. You can buy satisfactory lubrication. You can buy Iso-Vis. Motorists are enthusiastic. It's the motor oil of today! When you've driven a car lubricated with Iso-Vis you'll understand its popularity. Be sure to try it!

FAST FREIGHT PLIES ON M. & I. RAILWAY

Inaugurated Between International
Falls and Brainerd, Fast
Connections Here

SERVICE IS APPRECIATED

Operated Northward Too, Undoubtedly to be Permanent
Feature of Road

A fast freight service has been inaugurated by the Minnesota & International railway, plying between International Falls and Brainerd, and connecting with fast freights out of Brainerd. Newsprint, lumber and all other shipments at International Falls and Bemidji loaded today, for instance, reach Brainerd the following afternoon and are carried through to the Twin Cities that night giving 24 hours quicker service than in the past.

This fast freight is also operated northward and gives Bemidji and International Falls 24 hours better service on their merchandise and other shipments. It was inaugurated as a trial the latter part of April and has given such satisfaction and worked so successfully that it will no doubt become a permanent feature.

Train and engine crews come right through from International Falls to Brainerd, making a 200 mile "highball run."

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The bewitching Betsy Patterson has been staying with her father at Sweet Springs Inn when they are called home to Baltimore to entertain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. While at the Inn she is secretly attracted to her French "tutor," whom she knows as La Vert. French officers, however, who visit him, address him deferentially as Captain Bonaparte. When La Vert declines to accompany Betsy to Baltimore she is piqued and insults him. Elaborate preparations are under way at the Patterson home. But Betsy is thinking of La Vert, while she dons her most dazzling dress to greet Captain Jerome Bonaparte.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

A train of white satin, appliqued with a bias fold of cream satin embroidered with sprays of seed pearls in the forms of roses, fell gracefully back from the long, swathing gown that clung provocatively to the rounded limbs. All about the hem of the dress were the embroidered pearls, and as the clinging gown rose to the high waist, the pearls were scattered in vine-like design. Over the short, puffed sleeves of cream crepe trimmed with bands of pearls, fell caps of cream satin with delicately embroidered roses. About the white neck rose a plaited ruching of cream crepe edged with lace. And to the music of a chorus of "Ohs," and "Ahs," the superb figure moved slowly down the steps.

"Laws a massy!" Ettie's eyes popped. "What a dress! De men gets roun' her lak flies 'roun' lasses. Watch her step out now. My! Don't she hol' her haid lake a two year ole! Missey Betty take de shine off'n dem all!"

Betsy had reached the bottom step, and now she curtsied and held out a white gloved hand to her father, resting her fingers lightly on his arm. With dignity and pride the Major escorted his daughter into the main salon, and, like a ship at sea, she was swallowed up in a mist of masculine admiration.

"Oh, Lawd 'a massy!" Ettie sighed voluptuously. "Hist! Somebody a comin'!" she warned as a sound of voices rose clearly.

"Ah, dear Mary," Preston attempted to embrace the girl, but she eluded his questing arms, laughing. "You see, I brought you Betty's miniature." He reached in his pocket and brought out the exact miniature which had caused the duel at Sweet Springs. "I had intended returning it to you at the Springs, but unfortunately when I examined it closely I found that one of the settings was loose and I returned it to have it attended to."

"Oh, thank you," Mary took the miniature and put it in her reticule. "I gave it to Betty for her birthday last February, you know, and the settings always seemed loose."

Preston breathed a sigh of relief at Mary's lack of questioning. He did not particularly care to expose the incident of the Springs and was now thoroughly ashamed of it. Explanations had followed the affair; he had been returned the miniature by the "tutor," which he had promised to have repaired for Mary, and now it was over.

"I surmise that you've been taken up with your Jerome Bonaparte," Mary was saying. "So much so that you haven't had time to think of poor little me."

"Hypocrite!" Preston laughed. "You know I think of none else. But it is true—I have been busy with Bonaparte and his affairs. I found it really impossible to get away before."

"They say he's taken a great fancy to you," Mary avoided the hand that reached for hers and smiled. "They say he wants you to go back to France with him. Will you go?" "He sails on Wednesday next," Preston leaned closer to the soft pink figure. "We shouldn't have time."

"We?" Mary questioned with

"And then it would depend—how would you like to live in France?" Preston persisted.

"Oh, George!" Mary breathed. But her words were lost in a quick embrace that caused her at its conclusion to smooth her hair and try to refrain from blushing.

"Oh, George, now listen, do," she pleaded, stepping back out of arm's reach. "You know M. La Vert? Well, Betty was so angry—so chagrined by his having refused to accompany us to Baltimore that she's thought of little else since. She talks half the night about him and of how she will have her revenge upon him, and oh, dear—I fear she is in love with him."

"What!" Preston exclaimed. Then he paused. "Can you keep a secret?" he asked finally.

"Oh, yes, I love them too well to give them away," Mary breathed, her eyes round and bright.

"I told you La Vert was on Bonaparte's staff," Preston reminded her. "And he is coming here tonight."

"Oh, dear, I must run right upstairs and tell her," Mary started for the window. But Preston caught her arm.

"Is that the way you keep a secret?"

"Oh, but you'll let me tell her," Mary begged. "Won't you, George? She must be prepared."

"Listen, Mary," Preston drew the girl with him to the garden gate, his arm about her slender waist. "He'll be waiting outside the garden in a few minutes, and Mary, dear Mary, do contrive some way that he may see her alone. Leave the garden gate unbarred—like this," he lifted the latch. "Get Betty through on some pretense, into the garden—and leave the rest to fate."

"O, I dare not," Mary gasped, frightened. "Why does he wish to see her alone?"

"There is something he wants to tell her, Mary," Preston patted the girl's hand. "Something she must know before she meets Captain Bonaparte—something I wish her to know. Believe me, dear, it is urgent."

"Oh, well, if you really want," Mary hesitated. "If you really want Betty—Tch! She's coming," she pointed to the verandah. "Let's go this way—if she sees us together, you know, George—she's such a tease—oh, George—come—"

The two disappeared into the garden as Betty stepped out onto the verandah, followed by a bevy of admirers.

"Who called?" Betty looked about questioning. "Didn't you hear my name?" She turned to the men. "Glory be to God," exclaimed Sir Henry. "Of course we did. We hear nothing else—waking—in our dreams—but Betty—Betty Patterson—"

"Oh, law, Sir Harry," Betty turned towards the garden gate as though in search of something. But the dark shadows offered no revelation of hidden secrets. "You're foolish and admire the garden."

"Mary and I designed the decorations ourselves, you know. Well, to be perfectly honest Mary did all the work while I sat about and—"

"Inspired her, as you do everyone," Calhoun finished the sentence for her.

"Oh, do I," Betty replied vaguely, still looking towards the garden, and edging nearer the gate each moment. "Well, now, I'm going to sit right here," she chose a seat alongside the open entrance, "and inspire you all—to go back and bring out some girls. Law! You're all too good." She waved the men away. "You spoil me, and they are hosts of ladies in there who would like to see the gardens. Now, go, all of you. I mean it," she commanded.

"God help us all," Sir Harry sighed. "To obey the wishes of their Queen." Betty watched them disappear, and then sighed with relief. She looked around, still searching. Then from her reticule she drew forth the scraps of paper; laid them on her lap, and tried to piece them together. She sighed again. "The rose garden at eight" and "One last lesson." Why, oh, why, had she allowed herself to get into such a foolish temper, she argued. She must see La Vert—talk to him once more—she must meet him. So she drew further back into the shadows and out of sight.

Now there came a sound of the rumbling wheels and the clatter of horses' hoofs. The negro servants ran frantically to their posts, as one of their group came tumbling into the room, breathless and announcing: "Dar's a carriage comin' wiv some ge'men's ridin' in front!" Immediately all heads turned toward the doorway, and the ladies put on their best and most shimmering ensembles. It looked like a Rogers group caught in a moment of intense expectancy. Major Patterson leaned his neck.

A misunderstanding of the dispatcher's orders was said to have caused the wreck. Engineer Phillips of southbound train No. 103 said he expected to meet the other train at Hardy Station instead of at Hardy Spur, a mile from the station.

Most of the injured were hurt only slightly.

Old Prejudices Upset by Tests

Argument Is Found in Value of Oversized Potatoes for Seed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Phases of the moon and position of the horns still govern planting operations, particularly of potatoes, in many sections of the country. The light or the dark of the moon, or whether the horns point upward or down are of no concern to horticulturalists of the United States Department of Agriculture, but they are interested in providing information looking toward settlement of some of the other disputed questions dealing with potato planting.

William Stuart and several assistants report on experiments in potato planting carried on in leading potato-growing districts, Norfolk, Va.; Presque Isle, Maine; Greeley, Colo., and Jerome, Idaho.

Merits of Potato Sets.

Growers have long disputed the comparative merits of potato sets cut from the stem and from the seed end of the tubers. Some previous experiments seem to have indicated considerable superiority for one end or the other. The seed values of the two ends probably differ somewhat in different varieties. Results varied with the weight of the set, according to numerous tests, and the data as a whole seem to indicate that as the weight of the set increases there is a greater response from the apical (seed) set than from the basal (stem) set.

Another fruitful source of argument is found in the value of oversized tubers for seed. Most growers of seed potatoes have a strong prejudice against using large-sized tubers. After three years of experiment the investigators conclude that "sets from oversized tubers are evidently as productive as those from normal-size tubers, and in seasons when a considerable proportion of the seed stock grows too large to satisfy commercial demands it may be recommended for seed purposes. The chief objections that have always been raised in regard to oversized tubers are that there is more wastage in cutting, involving a larger quantity by weight to plant an acre, and in addition that they are slightly more difficult to cut."

Use of Immature Seed.

Several experimenters have claimed great advantages from the use of seed dug when it was somewhat immature. Departmental experiments at three stations were inconclusive. At the Idaho station the increased yield from immature seed ranged from 77 bushels an acre for one variety to 180 bushels an acre for the best of three varieties.

Italian Red Clover and Alfalfa Seed Worthless

Results of tests conducted at several experiment stations show conclusively that red clover and alfalfa seed from Italy are unfit for use anywhere in the United States. Alfalfa seed from South America also has been declared unfit for use in certain parts of this country. It now begins to appear that a similar study of adaptation must be conducted with red clover and alfalfa seed from different sections of the United States and adaptability areas located and defined. It has been discovered now that red clover seed produced in the Willamette valley, of Oregon, produces less hardy plants than seed produced in Wisconsin, Michigan or Minnesota and may prove to be as undesirable as Italian seed.

Grasshoppers Have Well Balanced Mineral Bodies

You have, no doubt, observed, and often heard people remark about chickens and turkeys doing so well where they had range and had access to a lot of grasshoppers. Do you know that a grasshopper's body, when chemically analyzed, shows that its body is made up of a perfectly balanced mineral mixture? The grasshopper's body contains a large per cent of vital minerals, and that's the secret as to why chickens and turkeys do so well on them, and are always seen chasing grasshoppers. The same is true of other bugs and worms, and is one of the main reasons why poultry do so well on free range.

Agricultural Notes

Make repeated plantings of beans and corn so as to have a continuous supply of these vegetables.

For carrots, no fresh manure should be applied. It makes 'em knotty and rough, and they often crack. Carrots like a sandy soil, not too rich.

Some of us don't have much success with lettuce after the hot weather comes. The secret of making it do well then is to provide some shade and give it plenty of water.

In a small home garden, plants can be saved from cutworms by putting a collar of stiff paper in the ground around them. This should go into the ground two inches and reach that high above it.

Watch the young cabbages and nip the cabbage worms. When white butterflies put in an appearance they mean cabbage worms. A spray with an arsenic compound will check them in a hurry.

BROKE UP ILLINOIS RING IN BATTLE FOR CLEAN POLITICS

Rodney H. Brandon, internationally known authority on child welfare, executive secretary of the Loyal Order of Moose and builder of Mooseheart, is the man who broke the backbone of the Small-Thompson-Croze political machine in Chicago and Illinois in one of the greatest battles ever waged for clean politics. His generalship won for Louis L. Emmerson by an unprecedented plurality the Republican nomination for governor over Len Small. He defeated one of the most formidable political rings in history as an exponent of the higher ideals in politics and without the assistance of any "slush fund."

Mr. Brandon has been heard in practically every city in the country on child welfare and crime prevention. In 1926 he was sent to Europe by the United States Government as an investigator on child welfare, and in 1927 was the American delegate to the Child Welfare Congress at Havana.

With the firm conviction that the people of Illinois wanted to be freed from the political machine which had brought Chicago and the state into disrepute locally and nationally, he waged a campaign that has attracted national attention. Already Mr. Brandon is spoken of as a possible chairman of the National Republican committee to manage the coming presidential campaign and in some quarters it is suggested that his name may come before the national convention as a vice-presidential candidate.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The bewitching Betsy Patterson has been staying with her father at Sweet Springs Inn when they are called home to Baltimore to entertain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon. While at the Inn she is secretly attracted to her French "tutor," whom she knows as La Vert. French officers, however, who visit him, address him deferentially as Captain Bonaparte. When La Vert declines to accompany Betsy to Baltimore she is piqued and insults him. Elaborate preparations are under way at the Patterson home. But Betsy is thinking of La Vert, while she dons her most dazzling dress to greet Captain Jerome Bonaparte.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

A train of white satin, appliqued with a bias fold of cream satin embroidered with sprays of seed pearls in the forms of roses, fell gracefully back from the long, swathing gown that clung provocatively to the rounded limbs. All about the hem of the dress were the embroiderings of pearls, and as the clinging gown rose to the high waist, the pearls were scattered in vine-like design. Over the short, puffed sleeves of cream crepe trimmed with bands of pearls, fell caps of cream satin with delicately embroidered roses. About the white neck rose a plaited ruching of cream crepe edged with lace. And to the music of a chorus of "Ohs," and "Ahs," the superb figure moved slowly down the steps.

"Laws a massy!" Ettie's eyes popped. "What a dress! De men gets round' her lak flies 'roun' laases. Watch her step out now. My! Don' she hol' her haid lake a two year old! Missey Betty take de shine off'n dem all!"

Betsy had reached the bottom step, and now she curtsied and held out a white gloved hand to her father, resting her fingers lightly on his arm. With dignity and pride the Major escorted his daughter into the main salon, and like a ship at sea, she was swallowed up in a mist of masculine forms.

"Oh, Lawd a massy!" Ettie sighed voluptuously. "Hast! Somebody a comin'." She warned as a sound of voices rose clearly.

"Ah, dear Mary," Preston attempted to embrace the girl, but she eluded his questing arms, laughing. "You see, I brought you Betty's miniature." He reached in his pocket and brought out the exact miniature which had caused the duel at Sweet Springs. "I had intended returning it to you at the Springs, but unfortunately when I examined it closely I found that one of the settings was loose and I returned it to have it attended to."

"Oh, thank you," Mary took the miniature and put it in her reticule. "I gave it to Betty for her birthday last February, you know, and the settings always seemed loose."

Preston breathed a sigh of relief at Mary's lack of questioning. He did not particularly care to expose the incident of the Springs and was now thoroughly ashamed of it. Explanations had followed the affair; he had been returned the miniature by the "tutor," which he had promised to have repaired for Mary, and now it was over.

"I surmise that you've been taken up with your Jerome Bonaparte," Mary was saying. "So much so that you haven't had time to think of poor little me."

"Hypocrite!" Preston laughed. "You know I think of none else. But it is true—I have been busy with Bonaparte and his affairs. I found it really impossible to get away before."

"They say he's taken a great fancy to you," Mary avoided the hand that reached for hers and smiled. "They say he wants you to go back to France with him. Will you go?" "He sails on Wednesday next," Preston leaned closer to the soft pink figure. "We shouldn't have time."

"We?" Mary questioned with reigned surprise.

Old Prejudices Upset by Tests

Argument Is Found in Value of Oversized Potatoes for Seed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Phases of the moon and position of the horns still govern planting operations, particularly of potatoes, in many sections of the country. The light or the dark of the moon, or whether the horns point upward or down are of no concern to horticulturalists of the United States Department of Agriculture, but they are interested in providing information looking toward settlement of some of the other disputed questions dealing with potato planting.

William Stuart and several assistants report on experiments in potato planting carried on in leading potato-growing districts, Norfolk, Va.; Presque Isle, Maine; Greeley, Colo., and Jerome, Idaho.

Merits of Potato Sets.

Growers have long disputed the comparative merits of potato sets cut from the stem and from the seed end of the tubers. Some previous experiments seem to have indicated considerable superiority for one end or the other. The seed values of the two ends probably differ somewhat in different varieties. Results varied with the weight of the set, according to numerous tests, and the data as a whole seem to indicate that as the weight of the set increases there is a greater response from the apical (seed) set than from the basal (stem) set.

Another fruitful source of argument is found in the value of oversized tubers for seed. Most growers of seed potatoes have a strong prejudice against using large-sized tubers. After three years of experiment the investigators conclude that "sets from oversized tubers are evidently as productive as those from normal-size tubers, and in seasons when a considerable proportion of the seed stock grows too large to satisfy commercial demands it may be recommended for seed purposes. The chief objections that have always been raised in regard to oversized tubers are that there is more wastage in cutting, involving a larger quantity by weight to plant an acre, and in addition that they are slightly more difficult to cut."

Use of Immature Seed.

Several experimenters have claimed great advantages from the use of seed dug when it was somewhat immature. Departmental experiments at three stations were inconclusive. At the Idaho station the increased yield from immature seed ranged from 77 bushels an acre for one variety to 180 bushels an acre for the best of three varieties.

Italian Red Clover and Alfalfa Seed Worthless

Results of tests conducted at several experiment stations show conclusively that red clover and alfalfa seed from Italy are unfit for use anywhere in the United States. Alfalfa seed from South America also has been declared unfit for use in certain parts of this country. It now begins to appear that a similar study of adaptation must be conducted with red clover and alfalfa seed from different sections of the United States and adaptability areas located and defined. It has been discovered now that red clover seed produced in the Willamette valley, of Oregon, produces less hardy plants than seed produced in Wisconsin, Michigan or Minnesota and may prove to be as undesirable as Italian seed.

Grasshoppers Have Well Balanced Mineral Bodies

You have, no doubt, observed, and often heard people remark about chickens and turkeys doing so well where they had range and had access to a lot of grasshoppers. Do you know that a grasshopper's body, when chemically analyzed, shows that its body is made up of a perfectly balanced mineral mixture? The grasshopper's body contains a large per cent of vital minerals, and that's the secret as to why chickens and turkeys do well on them, and are always seen chasing grasshoppers. The same is true of other bugs and worms, and is one of the main reasons why poultry do so well on free range.

Agricultural Notes

Make repeated plantings of beans and corn so as to have a continuous supply of these vegetables.

For carrots, no fresh manure should be applied. It makes 'em knotty and rough, and they often crack. Carrots like a sandy soil, not too rich.

Some of us don't have much success with lettuce after the hot weather comes. The secret of making it do well then is to provide some shade and give it plenty of water.

In a small home garden, plants can be saved from cutworms by putting a collar of stiff paper in the ground around them. This should go into the ground two inches and reach that high above it.

Watch the young cabbages and nip the cabbage worms. When white butterflies put in an appearance they mean cabbage worms. A spray with an arsenic compound will check them in a hurry.

BROKE UP ILLINOIS RING IN BATTLE FOR CLEAN POLITICS

Rodney H. Brandon, internationally known authority on child welfare, executive secretary of the Loyal Order of Moose and builder of Mooseheart, is the man who broke the backbone of the Small-Thompson-Crowe political machine in Chicago and Illinois in one of the greatest battles ever waged for clean politics. His generalship won for Louis L. Emmerson by an unprecedented plurality the Republican nomination for governor over Len Small. He defeated one of the most formidable political rings in history as an exponent of the higher ideals in politics and without the assistance of any "slush fund."

Mr. Brandon has been heard in practically every city in the country on child welfare and crime prevention. In 1926 he was sent to Europe by the United States Government as an investigator on child welfare, and in 1927 was the American delegate to the Child Welfare Congress at Havana.

With the firm conviction that the people of Illinois wanted to be freed from the political machine which had brought Chicago and the state into disrepute locally and nationally, he waged a campaign that has attracted national attention. Already Mr. Brandon is spoken of as a possible chairman of the National Republican committee to manage the coming presidential campaign and in some quarters it is suggested that his name may come before the national convention as a vice-presidential candidate.

PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE NEAR ARDY ARKANSAS

Ardy, Ark., May 16.—(UP)—Seventeen persons were injured, one probably fatally, in a collision between two St. Louis and San Francisco passenger trains near here last night.

A misunderstanding of the dispatcher's orders was said to have caused the wreck. Engineer Phillips of southbound train No. 103 said he expected to meet the other train at Hardy Station instead of at Hardy Spur, a mile from the station. Most of the injured were hurt only slightly.
